Guggenheim curator to speak

Dr. Mark Rosenthal, consultive curator to the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York, will be featured in two lecture series to be presented in March by the Department of Art. Both programs will be held in the Robert R. Muntz Library, 4th floor.

He will open the Spring Arts Lecture Series, cosponsored by the Tyler Museum of Art and free to the public, at 7:30 p.m. March 7. The Second Friday Fine Arts Lecture Series, cosponsored by Friends of the Arts, will present Rosenthal at 10:45 a.m. March 8 preceded by a 10 a.m. coffee; for ticket information call the Office of Development, ext. 7110.

Rosenthal served as curator of twentieth-century art at the Philadelphia Museum of Art from 1983 - 89, during which time he also was adjunct professor at the University of Pennsylvania and Bryn Mawr College. From 1976 - 83 he was curator of collections at the University Art Museum on the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

As curator Rosenthal has organized exhibitions of many internationally known artists, including Philip Guston, Jasper Johns, Anselm Kiefer and Franz Marc. He holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa.

Additional speakers in both series are planned for April.

'Tribute' complimentary tickets available

Complimentary tickets are available now for "Tribute," the Bernard Slade play to be performed at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, March 8 - 9 and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 10.

The comedy/drama tells the story of Scottie Templeton, who has never taken anything seriously — including his own attempts at love, marriage, fatherhood and career success. James Johnson of Tyler plays Scottie (portrayed on stage and screen by Jack Lemmon), the 50-year-old Broadway press agent who learns he is dying. Michael Prewitt of Athens portrays Scottie's estranged son Jud.

The supporting cast includes Tylerites Gaynor Edwards (as Scottie's ex-wife Maggie), Lovenia Ford (as Scottie's doctor) and Shelley Wallace (as Sally). Danny Moss of Longview plays Lou, and Cassandra Regian of Fort Worth is Hilary.

Janee McGoff, lecturer in drama, is director of the production. Dr. James Hatfield, director of theatre and assistant professor of drama, is technical director. For reservations call the Department of Drama and Communication, ext. 7253.

INTERCOM is published every other Monday (excluding holidays) during fall and spring, and once monthly during summer sessions, for UT Tyler faculty & staff. Deadline for written material is Wednesday before publication in the Public Information Office, ADM 221.
